

Aletsch Glacier Trekking

Fiesch - Konkordiahütte - Fiesch

A breathtaking trekking on the largest glacier in the Alps to the Konkordiahütte at 2850 meters above sea level

Program:

Day 1: We meet at 8:00 a.m. at the Bergsteigerzentrum Aletsch at the Volken Sport Store and Café in Fiesch, which is directly situated in the valley station of the gondola Fiesch-Fiescheralp. From here we take the gondola to the Fiescheralp at 2222m. There we start our approximately 90 minutes hike via Tälligrattunnel to the Gletscherstube at Märjelensee at 2350m. There we have the first and last small break before reaching the glacier.

After the short break we continue to the big Aletsch Glacier. There we rope on and put on the crampons.

Before we start the ascent towards Konkordiaplatz, the mountain guide will orient you about the correct behavior on the glacier. Along the second medial moraine, also called the Kranzberg moraine, we will then hike at a leisurely pace towards the Konkordiahütte, where we will arrive at about 4:00 p.m. In between, there is of course a lunch break, also on the Kranzberg moraine at a dry spot. In the Konkordiahütte we enjoy a cozy hut evening in a unique ice landscape, in the middle of the UNESCO World Natural Heritage.

Day 2: So that we do not miss the sunrise, we will get up early. After a rich breakfast, we pack our backpacks and descend via the new metal staircase to the Aletsch Glacier, or better, to the Konkordiaplatz. Following the first medial moraine or Trugberg moraine, we will reach Märjelensee again in about 3 hours. Those who wish can refresh themselves in the cold mountain lake or hike back to Fiescheralp. You will be back in Fiesch between 1:00 and 3:00 p.m.
